

Kim DiVine

one sheet

I was born and raised in the lovely little town of Holden, Massachusetts and now reside in (almost always) sunny Los Angeles. I've been singing since I can remember but discovered my voice in high school (chorus, musicals, glee club) and when in college (Fairfield University) decided it was time to play an instrument. I picked up my mom's old Martin Classical and started writing songs (with influences by the Indigo Girls, Radiohead, Jeff Buckley at the time). For extra credit I recorded a demo called Bits and Pieces, and fell instantly in love with songwriting. A year later I recorded Here and In Between.

In late 2004 I packed my bags and drove across the country to San Diego and right into the music scene where I met amazing musicians and later released my EP Hummingbird. In 2007 I made the move to LA and found myself cast in a musical webisode series sponsored by Ford Motors (Kim & Seana). Once I returned from my travels I hit the LA scene where I met many more amazing musicians and fell in love with the Hotel Cafe. I used a broken heart as fuel to write songs for my full length release (Square One). And now in 2012, the new EP, Five (my favorite number!) is released.

I gravitate towards the color green, always, and I love lattes of any kind, yoga, hiking, being crafty, and my little dog Ella.
